

AT&T Information Systems representatives Henry Wesley, left, and Sally Sternbach presented the College with $83,000 worth of computer equipment and software on Oct. 14. Kevin Casey, director of Computer Services, and Vice President Lou Markwith accepted the gift. On Oct. 15 the AT&T Foundation gave the College $15,000 toward renovation of Fowler Hall.

Spirit Week: Getting ready

This is "Spirit Week" for the student body as it prepares for homecoming weekend and its featured event: the 1:30 p.m. Saturday football game against Tennessee Wesleyan College.

The Bison hope to improve on last year's homecoming game in which they were shut out by the Appalachian State Club 18-0.

Coach Bob Westermann reports that the team is coming off a good week of practice and that "spirits are high for homecoming." He noted that there are many similarities between the Tennessee Wesleyan squad and the Gallaudet team: Both are physically big and boast good team speed, and both feature a large number of freshmen.

Staff and faculty are invited to participate in all homecoming weekend activities, including the pre-game celebration from 8 to 11 p.m. this Friday and the post-game bash from 4:30 to 10 p.m. Saturday, both in "Ole Jim."

The traditional homecoming parade will begin at noon Saturday, following a Silver Anniversary Brunch honoring the Class of 1960.

An added bonus of homecoming weekend is that everyone will get an extra hour to recover from the flurry of activities: This Sunday morning all clocks and watches should be set back one hour.

You can call her residence education assistant or food services liaison . . . or you can call her just plain 'Mom'

Home is where the heart is.

And making a school residence "home" to new students is asking a lot. But, for Ida Vernon, that means just asking her to be herself—"Mom."

Vernon fills two roles in her position as residence education assistant/food services liaison. As residence education assistant, she works with students in the dormitory monitoring dorm attendance, study hour, room cleanliness and general student behavior. She also develops educational and recreational programs for and with students in agreement with MSSD student development philosophy.

As food services liaison, Vernon monitors the conduct of students in the dining room. "No hats are worn while eating, and no food throwing or rowdiness of any kind is allowed. These are my rules," said Vernon. "I don't stand there shaking my finger at them," she said. "I sit down with them and explain about respect for others and for school property."

Vernon works 20 salaried hours and 20 hours as a volunteer in exchange for room and board. During her free time she does what she said she enjoys most, being mom to youngsters who need her.

It was not unusual, Vernon said, to find one of "her girls" waiting outside her door, for example, when she returned from her first weekend away from MSSD since beginning work. "The girl's boyfriend dropped her, and she needed comforting, just like my own six children needed me when relationships turned sour. It's just like the students at Gallaudet who often needed me when I was a student living with them in the dorm," she said.

Pilot projects, new programs just part of scene at SEHS

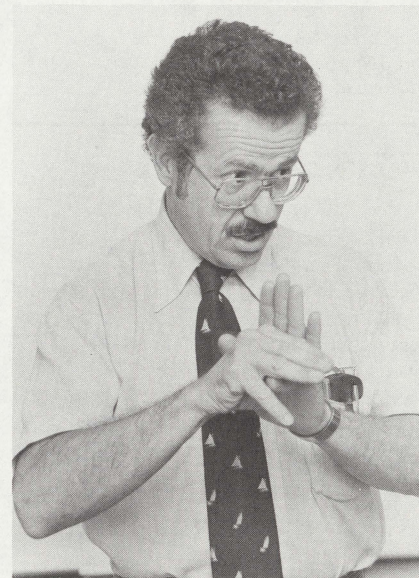

Pilot projects, collaborations, new program ideas . . . things are cooking in the School of Education and Human Services (SEHS), and David Martin is stirring the pots.

One of the first challenges facing Dr. Martin, who became dean of SEHS on July 1, was becoming familiar with the many different departments and programs in SEHS. The school encompasses seven academic departments.

Already in place are programs in school counseling, rehabilitation counseling for deaf individuals, training for teachers in deaf and regular education, physical education, and recreation and leisure studies. There are courses at the graduate level in education for multihandicapped hearing impaired people, parent/infant education and educational technology. The SEHS also offers an EdS program in instructional supervision and a doctoral program in school administration.

"The emphasis," said Dr. Martin, "is on professional preparation in various fields of education and human services. We're working on the development of several new programs for the fall of 1986, plus a number of potential new programs to begin in 1987 and beyond."

Martin received word Oct. 9 that one of SEHS's proposals for a new pilot project was accepted by the Presidential Awards program. The project, to be implemented in the fall of 1986, will provide training to hearing impaired graduate students in the development of reading and writing skills.

David Martin

"I'm really excited about that," said Martin. "We want to serve the needs of hearing impaired graduate students." Currently, students wanting assistance in language are served on an individual basis through tutoring.

Other new programs planned for the fall of 1986 are training in mental health counseling and school guidance for exceptional children plus EdS programs in parent/infant education, multihandicapped education and reading and deafness education.

And, said Dr. Martin, "After next year we're projecting two new areas at the doctoral level and a master's degree program in therapeutic recreation. We also have the design for master's programs in school administration and educational research.

"The thrust of all these plans is to move into serving preprofessionals or professionals in need of advanced training or retraining—groups we've not been able to serve before," he said. "We're intent on increasing enrollment through development of new programs to attract students we haven't appealed to before and through new ways of recruiting students into existing programs."

Dr. Martin said that the College will soon be hiring, for the first time, a full-time graduate school recruiter.

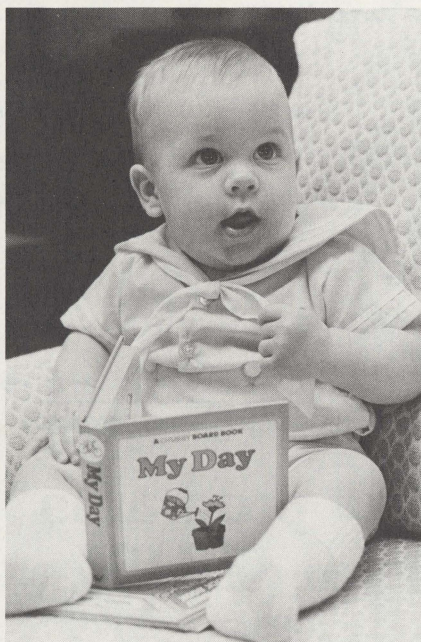

Members of SEHS and PreCollege Programs are beginning to work more closely to share resources and take advantage of each other's expertise, he said. Representatives of both units met recently to discuss such ideas as sharing practicum placements, joint research projects and reciprocal presentations by faculty of each unit.

SEHS agenda set

Dr. Martin also hopes to increase collaboration with other universities in the area to strengthen and complement Gallaudet's programs. "We're exploring ways that we can formally share resources to the benefit of our students," said Dr. Martin. "This goes beyond the consortium idea." Developing video programs to share with other universities is one idea being examined.

"We're surviving a temporary handicap while waiting for the renovation of Fowler Hall to be finished," said Dr. Martin. All of SEHS, except the Department of Physical Education, is housed in cramped quarters in College Hall. Martin said everyone in SEHS is excited about the renovation, scheduled for completion in January.

"It's going to be a wonderful change, and it will serve the students better in so many ways—more classroom and office space for counseling and advising."

"It's a super faculty in the School of Ed," Dr. Martin continued. "Our faculty members have very specific backgrounds in the fields that they're preparing students to enter. They are involved in on-going research in those fields, so they're able to keep our programs very current. They're also a great source of ideas—there's no shortage of ideas for ways to improve programs or better serve students."

'Ole Jim's' second century an extra busy one

Stained glass windows, a high-beamed ceiling and serene simplicity: "Ole Jim" carries past architectural beauty into the modern College environment. Names of former Gallaudetians, visible on its stately stone and brick chimney, serve as reminders that the College's traditions are well founded.

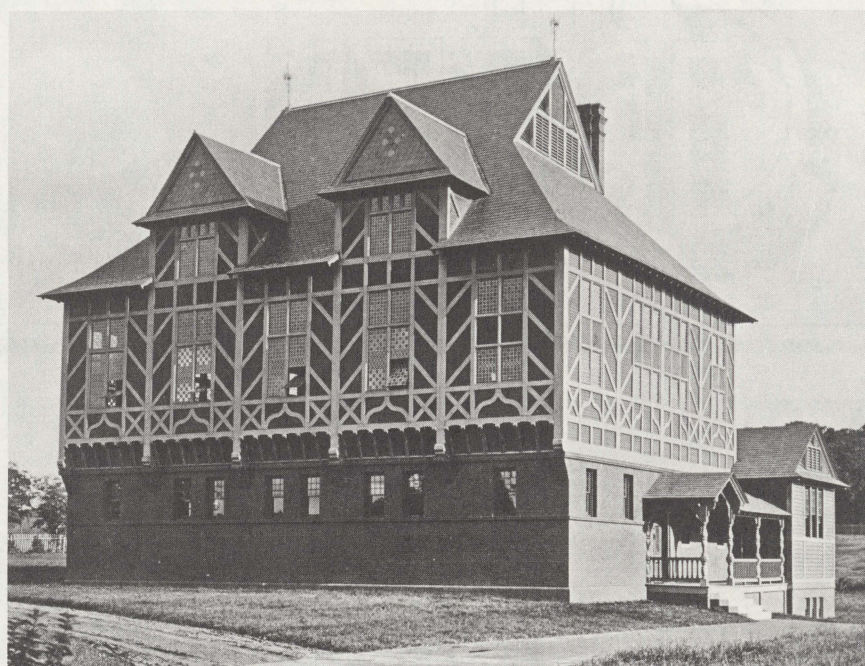

Even the recent renovations at "Ole Jim" illustrate progress that is in keeping with these traditions. "Ole Jim," the building that originally housed athletic programs, is still a center of activity on campus, a social gathering place for Gallaudet community members and many off-campus groups.

Since "Ole Jim" reopened in 1982, approximately 40,000 people have used the dining room/lounge and conference facilities for a wide range of activities.

The first six months of 1985 showed a dramatic increase in both reservations and attendance at "Ole Jim." During this period "Ole Jim" was reserved for 82 events, 35 of them during evenings and 19 on weekends. From September to December of this year, 62 reservations have already been made.

Alumni, faculty and staff hold meetings, workshops, training programs and receptions in either the first floor conference room or the upstairs dining and lounge areas. The Gallaudet College Alumni Association hosts meetings, reunion parties and fundraising events in the historic building, which also contains GCAA offices.

"Ole Jim" facilities also accommodate off-campus groups such as Deaf Pride, Otis House, the Metropolitan Washington Association of the Deaf and the Maryland Association of the Deaf. In addition, the dining room is the setting for anniversary and retirement parties, fashion shows, banquets, entertainment programs and wedding receptions.

This is how "Ole Jim" looked circa 1881, in the days of wide open spaces on Kendall Green.

Reservations are not usually accepted more than three months in advance, said Mike Kaika, coordinator for alumni programs in the Office of Alumni Relations and Advancement. "But," he said, "guidelines may be modified for events such as wedding receptions that must be planned many months in advance."

The fee for reserving five hours at "Ole Jim" is $50 for faculty and alumni and $75 for off-campus groups. There is an additional $30 charge for supervisory staff services. A $100 refundable deposit is required for reservations on weekends. These costs do not include ARA food services or alcoholic beverages.

During weekday hours from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. there is no charge to alumni, faculty or staff for using the dining room/lounge or conference room. Since the "Ole Jim" staff is committed to serving lunch from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Wednesdays through Fridays, and "happy hour" customers from 4 to 7 p.m. on Thursdays and Fridays, people reserving the facilities at these times must share them with customers.

"This is a do-or-die year for the lunch program," said Kaika. "The College cannot afford to subsidize ARA food services for only a few people." He added, "The question raised is, 'Why should ARA spend time and money to compete against itself if so many people use the snack bar?'"

"The 'happy hour' program is barely self-supporting," said Kaika, noting that this is expected to improve with better publicity and occasional promotional events.

Campus television programming, monitors and cable: All you ever wanted to know but were afraid to ask

Need a television monitor installed or repaired?

Want to know what's on College cable TV this week?

Interested in a special airing of a particular cable program?

Then you should know the following.

Gallaudet provides television monitors throughout the campus for use by faculty, staff and students. David Tweedie, dean of the School of Communication, is primarily responsible for the location of all monitors, including the placement of new ones. Dr. Tweedie accepted this responsibility in the fall of 1984.

Monitors are currently located in Kendall School, MSSD, Northwest Campus, Merrill Learning Center, residence halls and other key buildings on Kendall Green. If you wish to secure a new television monitor, make your request to the person in charge of your building, who will send a memorandum to Dr. Tweedie.

The television monitors are installed and serviced by Technical Support Services (TSS), under the direction of Lak An. The TSS staff suggests that you look for the written directions placed on or near your monitor. Always leave the television on Channel 3 to get the converter box to operate properly. If you encounter any technical difficulties, have the person in charge of your building contact TSS in the Merrill Learning Center, x5450 (V) or x5448 (TDD).

Programming for cable television at Gallaudet is a function of the Television and Cable TV Services, part of the Department of Television, Film and Photography, located in the Merrill Learning Center. A Cable TV Guide, published each month, is available at the information desk in Ely Center, on the third floor of the Merrill Learning Center and other places throughout the campus. You can request that a copy be mailed to you each month by providing your name and address to Cable TV Services.

Eleanor Galloway, coordinator of Television and Cable TV Services, welcomes questions and suggestions about cable programs. You may direct comments to the department at x5863.

Any faculty or staff member or student may request that a cable program be aired at a specific date and time. This service is provided by Cable Operator Production Support Service (COPS), located in MSSD. To place a videotape request, you must obtain the catalog number of the tape. This can be done using the microfiche reader in the library. Notify COPS of your request, and you will be assigned a channel on which to view the program. You can contact COPS at x5931.

Through the efficiency of these combined efforts, there is increased access to instructive and entertaining television programs. The School of Communication and its support staff is pleased to serve the College community and intends to continue providing a high level of service on both campuses.

Gallaudet College is an equal opportunity employer/education institution. Programs and services offered by Gallaudet College receive substantial financial support from the U.S. Department of Education.

Meet Ida, a.k.a. Mom

Vernon graduated from Gallaudet in 1981 with a bachelor of arts degree in social work. At 67 years, she was the oldest student graduated in the history of the College. After graduation, Vernon worked as a teacher's assistant/interpreter in a mainstream program in her home town of New Haven, Conn. She later served as an assistant in a program for emotionally disturbed students at the American School for the Deaf.

When Jerry Parker, MSSD director of Residence Programs, introduced 100 new students and their families to Vernon at this fall's New Student Parent Orientation Program, "the parents were visibly relieved that she would be here to help their adolescents adjust to pre-college life," he said.

"This kind of job traditionally goes to young professionals with master's degrees," said Parker, "but there are no academic degrees available in the kind of love, discipline and attention that Mom acquired naturally through a lifetime of caring for others."

"When you say, 'Ida' you mean 'total excellence' or 'pride' or 'quality' or all these things fused into one indivisible whole," said Frank Turk, dean of Student Life in PreCollege Programs. "We have needed someone of this caliber to work with our students all these years."

New law benefits hearing impaired

A new law in Virginia stipulates that deaf or hearing impaired individuals are entitled to have visual smoke detectors installed in their apartments or homes through a written request to a landlord or proprietor. A refundable deposit, not more than the value of the device, may be required of the tenant.

The law also applies to hotels, motels, and dormitory buildings that accommodate 20 or more individuals. Included as well are multiple-family dwellings having more than two units and boarding houses sheltering at least five individuals. Hotels and motels are required to have at least one visual smoke detector for every 25 units or less.

Other states, including Maryland, have similar laws. District of Columbia law, however, presently makes no provision for visual smoke detectors. The D.C. law states only that a smoke detector has to be "capable of sensing visible or invisible particles of combustion and emitting an audible signal."

Students offer service

The Life Adjustment Program at the Model Secondary School for the Deaf has set up a work station where students obtain job training in mailing services.

Services offered by the students include folding, stapling, stamping, stuffing, sealing and labeling.

Campus units are encouraged to use these services and help the students gain experience. There is a minimal service charge per work order.

For more information call MSSD, x5801, and leave a message for either Larry J. Berke or Richard Pelletier.

Rep. Peter Visclosky (D-Ind.), third from right, visited Gallaudet Oct. 7 to meet with students and speak to a government class. Peggy Volksdorf, left, is a Gallaudet graduate who works in the representative's office and introduced him to President Jerry C. Lee, right. The three other persons are current Gallaudet students from Rep. Visclosky's district: Peter Kappos, Mary Byn-dum and Joseph Jankowski, Jr.

DRCC dialogue set for Thursday

Members of the Deafness Related Concerns Council (DRCC) will hold a dialogue with the campus deaf community this Thursday, Oct. 24 from 4 to 6 p.m. in "Ole Jim."

Priority issues slated for DRCC action during the 1985-86 academic year include a response to the congressional oversight hearings, a position paper on research, the undergraduate admissions policy, deaf studies, deaf graduate studies and TDD repairs.

Barbara Kannapell will serve as the new chairperson for DRCC, and Hilary Ainbender will continue as secretary. Other members are Rich Pelletier, MSSD representative; Marianne Sas-seen, KDES representative; Nancy Bloch, College staff representative; Yerker Andersson, collegiate faculty representative and Merv Garretson, ex-officio.

The DRCC has compiled a report on members' comments on the Master Plan to be implemented in January. These comments express DRCC members' concerns about the quality of education provided to deaf students and the increasing number of hearing students being admitted to the College. Copies of this report are available at Harvey Goodstein's office, Hall Memorial Building room 276.

Other DRCC dialogue meetings are scheduled for Feb. 6 and April 3.

Phone compatibility is focus of bills

Sen. Larry Pressler (R-S. Dak.) and Rep. Nicholas Mavroules (D-Mass.) are prime sponsors of related bills in the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives, respectively, that would require all telephones sold in the U.S. to be hearing-aid compatible.

"Since the Telecommunications for the Disabled Act was approved in 1982, thousands of coin-operated and emergency telephones have been adapted to be compatible with hearing aids," said House cosponsor Frank J. Guarini (D-N.J.). "It's time that we take advantage of the technology available to us. At a cost of 1 to 3 cents per telephone, compatibility can be achieved at no significant cost to the manufacturer or the consumer."

Hearing aid wearers often are unable to communicate by telephone because of the weak electromagnetic field emitted by the receiver. An induction coil inserted into the receiver strengthens the electromagnetic field, allowing it to interact with the telecoil in the hearing aid.

Sponsored R&D

Weekly Highlight

The Office of Sponsored Programs reports that the College has received a grant of $41,486 from the U.S. Department of Education for the first part of a three-year project entitled "Rehabilitation of the Deaf."

The project director is Marita Danek from the Department of Counseling. The project is designed to (a) maintain and increase the supply of professionally trained and qualified rehabilitation counselors for the deaf; (b) develop new and expand existing public and private programs to better serve the needs of minority, multihandicapped and other deaf individuals; and (c) provide workshops, courses and inservice training to disseminate information about deafness and the needs of deaf rehabilitation clients.

For further information, call Dr. Danek at x5586.

Provided below are application deadlines of selected federal programs that offer potential grant or contract opportunities for faculty, staff and graduate students. More details on these and other programs of interest can be obtained from the Office of Sponsored Programs, x5034 (V/TDD).

Alumnae in the Sky

Did you think you were seeing some familiar faces as you were cruising at 30,000 feet and thumbing through Sky magazine?

Well, you were.

Several Gallaudet College students (now alumnae) were pictured in an article about the growth of college internships and their value to higher education. The article was in the September issue of the Delta Airlines magazine.

The students were part of the Experiential Programs Off Campus (EPOC) program.

Among Ourselves

President Jerry C. Lee received a Distinguished Alumni Award from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University's College of Education on Oct. 12. He also participated on a panel of distinguished alumni discussing "Issues for Educational Leaders." Dr. Lee spoke on "Visions of Leadership." The award and panel were part of homecoming weekend activities at the president's alma mater.

Jan Richardson of the Instructional Development and Evaluation Center will begin a leave of absence in late October to become executive director of the Association for Educational Data Systems. In Jan's absence, Bette Landish will be acting director of IDEC. Bette will be located in the main IDEC office in KDES and can be reached at x5821.

Cynthia Fernandes, Harriet Kaplan and Linda Jacobs-Condit from the Department of Audiology gave a presentation on "An Assistive Devices Model Service, Delivery and Demonstration Project" Sept. 28 at the Maryland Speech and Hearing Association. Margie Sommers of KDES and Ken Titkin of the Department of Communication Arts gave a presentation on "A Model of Interdisciplinary Training."

Announcements

"Focus G," a 15-minute biweekly student news program will debut on Gallaudet's Channel 33 beginning at 12:45 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 27. The program will be repeated hourly at quarter to the hour through Tuesday, Oct. 29. Three students majoring in TV—Teri Daniil, Mike Montagnino and Mike Walton—are responsible for all elements of the production. "Focus G" is a project of Network News, a Television, Photography and Film Department course taught by Marin Allen and Jane Norman.

The Gallaudet College Career Center is cosponsoring a Graduate and Professional School Fair at George Washington University's Marvin Center Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. More than 150 university representatives are expected to be on hand to discuss graduate offerings. Interested persons should contact the Career Center immediately at x5643, especially if they would like to sign up for interpreter and/or transportation services.

Big Sisters of the Washington Metropolitan Area needs women age 22 and above with sign language skills to offer companionship, guidance and understanding to a hearing impaired girl. For further information, call 543-3403 (V/TDD). Big Sisters, a nonprofit social service agency, will hold an orientation meeting for volunteers this Friday, Oct. 25, from 6 to 8 p.m. at 1524 Pennsylvania Ave. SE, #2.

Deaf artist Ellen Mansfield will exhibit 30 of her recent oil paintings, ink drawings and watercolors on Sunday, Oct. 27 at her studio in Seabrook, Md. The hours are 2 to 5 p.m. and the address is 9977 Goodluck Rd., Apt. 103. For more information call (301) 794-8015 (TDD).

Tickets are still available for "Cabaret 3rd Edition" at 8 p.m. Nov. 1 and 2 in "Ole Jim." The tickets are $10 each and must be purchased in advance at "Ole Jim."

Bison win on last-minute field goal

Dramatic.

That's the only way to describe the Gallaudet football team's 17-14 victory over St. Peter's College Oct. 11 in Lyndhurst, N.J.

Andy Rosson, a freshman from Allen, Tex., kicked a 21-yard field goal—the first of his college career—with five seconds remaining to lead the Bison to their third win in five games.

Gallaudet overcame a 14-0 deficit behind the solid running of two other freshmen—fullback Robert Wilkins and tailback Pat Hutson—each of whom rushed for nearly 100 yards.

Sophomore tackle Junius "Bobo" Taylor's sack of St. Peter's quarterback Sean Groom was the key defensive play leading to the game-winning field goal.

Sports picture brightens for teams as the fall season nears conclusion

The Gallaudet women's volleyball team is off to a flying start this season with a 22-4 record. As of Sept. 30, the team was ranked 18th in the nation in the NCAA Division III. The Bisonettes, who beat Division I Howard University on Oct. 8, finished third in the Catholic University Invitational and first in the Randolph-Macon and Washington College Invitationals.

The College's soccer team traveled to Suffolk Community College, Long Island, N.Y. Oct. 11 and came away with a 2-2 tie. Goalie Tony Costa leads the defense and Simon Patterson's goal-producing boots have led the team to an impressive 6-2-1 record at mid-season.

The Bison booters lost their first away game Sept. 24 against Lancaster Bible College, but they went on to defeat Frederick Community College 3-1 on Sept. 27 and shut out Coppin State College 3-0 on Oct. 1.

The women's cross country team won the Harford Community College Cross Country Classic on Oct. 5. Gallaudet was led by Betsy Bachtel, the overall winner of the race with a time of 19:07. The team placed fifth of 10 teams in the Essex Invitational on Sept. 7. Bachtel placed second out of 66 runners, covering the 3.1-mile course with an impressive time of 18:16.

The men's cross country team edged out Coppin State College for third place out of the five colleges competing at the Oct. 5 meet. Loyola won and University of Maryland-Eastern Shore took second in that race. The top four Gallaudet finishers all had personal best times for the five-mile course.

The women's field hockey team recorded its first win of the season on Oct. 1 with a 4-3 victory over Lancaster Bible College. Their record as of Oct. 15 was 1-7.

New students signal SOS for help

When 285 new first-year students arrived for New Student Orientation (NSO) in August, they were greeted by 26 undergraduates sporting bright red caps bearing the letters SOS.

Student Orientation Service (SOS) was just one aspect of an important week for the new students. "It was great to meet someone on the very first day who's a student here already," said one newcomer. "My parents and I were really feeling confused when we arrived on campus," said another student. "It helped so much to have the SOS show us to our rooms, help us with the luggage and just be friendly."

This year, as in the past, the NSO program prepared new students for life at Gallaudet even before they began their first day of classes.

The program is coordinated by Susan Raley-Lyon, assistant dean for Auxiliary Programs, Division of Student Affairs, and Astrid Goodstein, coordinator of Academic Advising.

"Our goal is to give beginning students as much information as they need to make a successful transition to college life," said Raley-Lyon. "However, we realize that too much information at one time can overwhelm new students.

"We try to balance information about academics with opportunities to meet new friends, faculty and staff, and to become better acquainted with the campus and D.C. area."
